

JAPANESE SHIPS HALT BRITISH BOAT IN CHINA BLOCKADE

Gravely Increasing the International Tension Surrounding The Shanghai War

FEAR 300 ARE KILLED

City's South Station Bombed
By Japanese Air-planes

SHANGHAI, Aug. 28.—(INS)—Gravely increasing international tension surrounding the Shanghai war, Japanese warships halted a British steamer today while aerial bombs spread death and destruction through this city's South Station.

Three hundred persons were feared killed and two hundred injured when the crowded railway depot was suddenly bombed. Fifty children were reported involved in the bombing.

Equally liable to produce dangerous repercussions, Japanese warships, enforcing the blockade of the Chinese coast, stopped the British steamer Shenking off Woosung.

The British commander in chief here went into immediate action, demanding a prompt explanation of this action. He lodged a vigorous protest with Japanese authorities.

The Shenking is a vessel of 3,000 tons.

Halt of the British ship, coming on the heels of the wounding of British Ambassador Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen by a bullet from a Japanese airplane machine gun, kept British indignation against Japan here at fever pitch.

Britain already has lodged a strenuous protest against the wounding of the ambassador.

The bombing of the station, in defiance of diplomatic representations against using Shanghai as a war zone, also increased anger of foreigners against Japanese authorities.

The Japanese, however, were ready with a quick excuse for this action.

Bombing of the railway station, they claimed, was necessary on grounds Chinese military reinforcements were arriving there.

Foreign observers, however, said no Chinese troops were actually in the vicinity of the station when it was bombed. Only a few members of the Chinese police force and peace preservation corps were at the station when the bombs rocked the area.

The missiles also disrupted communications and cable facilities.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 28.—(INS)—Three hundred persons were feared killed and 200 injured today when Shanghai's crowded South Station was suddenly bombed.

Fifty children were reported among the dead and wounded.

The bombing spread panic through the city as it suddenly brought back the full horror of war to Shanghai. The station was made a target for aerial missiles in flat defiance of foreign diplomatic demands that Shanghai should not be made a theatre of war.

With the smoke from the blast still grimly spiraling skyward, Chinese Boy Scouts and Girl Guides devoted their first attention to rescuing the children involved.

One bomb hit a corner of the building, setting it on fire. Firemen later extinguished the blaze, however.

Another deadly missile hit the nearby bridge leading over the railway tracks, scattering sacks and bundles of goods in all directions.

An automobile and truck were incinerated.

Evangelist Tells Police He Murdered His Wife

LINDEN, N. J., Aug. 28.—(INS)—New Jersey police today pieced together the story of a trans-continental automobile trip which progressed to the tune of gospel preaching and ended here in murder.

Principals in the weird case were preacher Lloyd Pusey and his wife, who have been preaching the gospel and squabbling among themselves as they motored from California to New Jersey.

The woman was the victim. With two deep gashes in the head, her still warm body was found in their automobile, which was parked in a dark side street here.

Pusey was climbing from the car as two policemen approached with drawn pistols. He surrendered without hesitation, simply announcing:

"I just killed my wife because she threatened to kill me."

The 44-year-old farmer-evangelist was booked on a charge of murder. He and his wife were married in Los Angeles in October, 1936.

He told officials he and his wife had preached in their spare time in California while he worked on a farm. They decided last May to move to Oakland, N. J.

They started out by automobile, making many stops en route to spread the gospel.

MUCH SPECULATION OVER MELLON'S WEALTH

Funeral Service To Be Held
This Afternoon in Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh

HAD A HUGE FORTUNE

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(INS)—Debate over the extent of Andrew W. Mellon's fortune raged today as a crack railroad flier sped his body homeward to Pittsburgh for burial in the city where he amassed one of the greatest estates ever gathered by an American.

Some estimates placed the fortune at $200,000,000. Others carried its value as high as $2,000,000,000.

One point, however, the disputants were agreed. This was that the fortune, so intertwined with other Mellon interests that its extent as a single unit may never be exactly known, gave Mellon a virtual empire of his own.

Accompanying the body of the former Secretary of the Treasury and Ambassador to Britain, whose financial acumen shared a place with his passion for fine art, was a small group of mourners. They included his son, Paul, his daughter, Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, her husband, and others who surrounded Mellon in the latter part of his life.

They followed the body from Southampton, N. Y., where death ended Mellon's long career in finance and public life.

The task of moving the body was carried out with simplicity. The simple casket was placed in a special funeral car, which served as the only evidence one of the world's richest men was on his last journey. The body was scheduled to reach Pittsburgh this morning.

Services will be held this afternoon at the $3,000,000 Liberty Presbyterian Church, a gift of the Mellon family, and will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchinson.

Capture Slayer of Police Without Any Resistance

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—(INS)—Cringing on a bed in terror, Edward P. Simpson, 33, alias Swartz, alleged slayer of Newton Policeman Henry G. Bell, was captured without resistance today in a Dorchester hideaway by a huge detail of heavily armed state and local police.

"Don't shoot, I haven't a gun," pleaded the man for whom one of the biggest man-hunts in Massachusetts was launched after Bell was fatally wounded and motorcycle patrolman Lawrence C. Murphy critically injured with two bullets in the abdomen.

Another man, Dennis Addison, employed in a Charlestown garage who occupied the second floor of the house where the raid was made, was arrested on a charge of being an accessory after the fact to murder. Police said Simpson reached the hideout shortly after the shooting, shortly after midnight, Sunday, and had not left.

Simpson had a bullet wound in his left shoulder. It appeared to have been given medical attention, police said.

Farm Products Must Be Well Graded, Says Speaker

LANGHORNE, Aug. 28.—"What Can Be Done to Improve the Agricultural Opportunities of Our Community?" was the question discussed at the meeting of the Middletown Grange held in the Friends school house.

One of the most important things, said Frank Thompson, is the good grading of farm products. The farmer, he said, should realize that he will have to depend upon the public for the sale of his products and these should be graded with care so that they will sell readily.

Continuing his discussion, Mr. Thompson said the farmer must follow a scientific method of preparing the soil so that it can yield the best. The selection of the best seed was also considered important by Mr. Thompson.

J. Russell Newbold opened a discussion of the question, "In what way should our local farmers co-operate to save money today?" Mr. Newbold said that at present not much is being done among the farmers in this respect. He explained how it is possible to sell products under a uniform plan. Mr. Newbold pointed out that the joint ownership of farm machinery will cut down on the investment of the farmers and at the same time it will enable the small farmers to compete with the large producers.

Mrs. Henry C. Pickering gave a short reading in which she explained how to make pomander, an old-fashioned rose jar.

Grange notes were read by Jacob Hibbs, and May Newbold, who gave current events, spoke of the opening of the Quakertown Fair this week.

Prior to the presentation of the literary program the members of the grange conducted a lengthy business session, during which delegates to the Fall meeting of Lower Bucks and Philadelphia Pomona Grange, No. 22, which will be held in the Fallsington Library on Wednesday, September 1, were appointed. They are Edwin Ridge, May Newbold and Mrs. R. Walker Jackson.

It was decided to confer the first and second degrees upon a class of candidates at the meeting on Wednesday evening, September 22. All applications for these degrees are to be presented at the next meeting of the grange which will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Pickering, Woodbourne, near here, on Wednesday evening, September 8.

MARKETING NEW CROP OF PERISHABLE FOOD IS PAINSTAKING JOB

Critical inspection of vegetables and fruits on sale in markets and shops is necessary and always advisable, but rarely does the housekeeper think back of the actual sales status to the tedious and difficult processes of transferring the perishables to the consumer.

How many careful and expert steps are necessary to harvest and handle a new crop of delicate fruit, so that it will be delivered to the customers in top-notch condition.

For instance when the new crop of raspberries began to come in last month, it was a real problem to get this fruit into market without crushing, or other mechanical injury. Painstaking care is required from start to finish of the harvesting and delivering operations.

No matter how careful the retailer may be, once the berries are picked and in the baskets, the effects of rough and careless handling in the field cannot be overcome.

Three to five times a week, the pickers go through the berry patch. They are instructed to pick only one berry at a time and to place it in the basket before picking another. One interesting and little known point is that the pickers are required to use three fingers, instead of two, in picking each berry, to avoid crushing.

Over-ripe berries are put into separate receptacles, or discarded at the time of picking—all part of the work necessary if you are to enjoy fine-quality raspberries on your breakfast cereal, with your lunch, or a berry shortcake, or steamed pudding for dinner. So, if you spot one or two crushed berries, be patient with your dealer!

LINES OF WISDOM

For extra-tender and flavorful steak, rub a generous tablespoon of the best quality olive oil into the meat before broiling. The steak will be even better if at least 10 minutes is allowed for seasoning in the icebox, after the olive oil treatment. Do not salt the steak until turning for the first time.

BRISTOL NURSERY SCHOOL HOLDS PICNIC

Fifty children of the Nursery School, 309 Wod street, their mothers, sisters and brothers, had a delightful time at the picnic held at the Romanoff's farm, just outside of Bristol, recently. All kinds of games were played, but the hit of the day was the fat women's race for the mothers and teachers. Yes, just one look at the small top picture tells you part of the story; but to see it, well, it was just one big scream. The applause from the side lines was terrific as Mrs. Young of the Nursery School staff tore down the track to victory. Mrs. Martino was a close second. Then came the watermelon-eating contest. Now, you should have seen the 20 contestants as they went after their watermelons. Mrs. Alice G. Heidler is in charge of the Nursery School, which is under the direction of the Education and Recreation Division, W. P. A.

SCIARRA IN FINE SHAPE TO MEET SHULL HERE

Appearing in the best of condition, Tally Sciarra, veteran St. Ann's boxer, will meet one of the leading 126-pounders in the Middle Atlantic District of the A. A. U. Monday night, in the St. Ann's outdoor arena, when he stacks up against George Shull, Burlington youngster, who is a member of the LaSalle College boxing team.

Sciarra has fought the best of the bantamweight division, including: Vernon Woodland, Johnny Lito, Izzy Rubenstein, George Lyons and Eddie Swartz. He has always given the fans their money's worth, and has yet to take the full count. However, several of his bouts were stopped. His best bout of his infant career was when he stood toe to toe with Johnny Lito for five rounds in the Northeast Shrine Boxing Club. Lito won the decision in one of the best bouts that was held that year.

The Sciarra-Shull battle is only one of the ten bouts that Match-Maker Sammy Moffo has carded. Vince Delia will return to ring warfare, meeting Joe Amico, Pen-Mar. Delia has been missing from the local arena for several weeks, having confined his fighting to other rings.

Bouts are also on hand for Carl Spinelli, Sylvester Purnell, Leo Cicanti, Al Paris, Sammy Sindora, Johnny Raccagno, and Joe Ferrara. Their opponents will be announced later.

The St. Ann's athletic committee announced last night that intermission will be called at the beginning of the Tommy Farr-Joe Louis bout and the spectators will be able to listen to the blow by blow description of this bout through the amplifying system which will be installed at the ring.

Tickets are on sale at the St. Ann's club-house.

RAIN FOR FOURTH TIME POSTPONES BALL GAME

Rain for the fourth time interfered with the play-off of the Bristol Twilight League last night. As a result, the managers of the opposing teams, the Hibernians and the Odd Fellows, have agreed to play tomorrow afternoon on the Edgely diamond. A victory for the Hibs will bring the series to a close and give them the championship.

The Hibs have captured both of the contests played thus far. In both tilts, the Odds were blanked. Billy Gallagher turned the trick in the opener and Dave Ennis repeated on the Landreth's field game. It remains to be seen whether "Henny" Morgan can do the same sort of a job.

The Odd Fellows are certain to start Hal Snyder on the mound. Snyder blanked the Hibs in one of the twilight season games and he is picked to beat the Corson street club. His battery mate will be Leo Hibs.

The umpires will be Joe Kervick, Chick Fields and New McGinley, with Jimmy Dolan keeping score. Game will begin at three o'clock sharp.

An ice made of tomato juice is a delicious and welcome appetizer to serve with roast beef or fowl at any season. Ices also may be made from lime, mint, apricot, lemon, pineapple or lemon juices as the flavor base.

HILLBISH VERY EAGER TO WIN 100-MILE RACE

Lester Hillbush has amassed plenty of the things that go to make motorcycle racing profitable. He's collected more prizes than molasses collects flies.

He's the national 100-mile champion, the 25-mile national king and holder of a score or more of sectional titles.

But there's one cycle crown—the 200-mile—that has eluded Les and his disappointment in its quest has sparked a personal campaign against the fellow who snatched it.

Of course, there's no chance for a crack at the "200" at present but Les has found a way to even his score. It comes in the 100-mile title test at Langhorne Labor Day.

You see, Ed Kretz, the California Comet who beat Hillbush in that six-day 200-mile race at Daytona Beach is also entered in the Langhorne Meet and Hillbush has his heart set on hanging a defeat on him.

Hillbush and Kretz put on a performance that day that was a lulu. They hung together from the start. It was virtually a two-man race with the rest of the field furnishing the sound effects.

This kept up for the 198 miles—only two measly miles to the finish. Then fate stepped in and flung a fast at Hillbush. He cracked up—and Kretz rode home the winner.

Since then a broken cycle and a broken heart have been mended but Hillbush's ride for revenge won't be ended until that checkered flag falls at Langhorne.

CORNWELLS SWIMMER PROMISING PERFORMER

Jack Lumsden, Cornwells Heights, one of the most promising boy swimmers in America, swimming under the title of the Germantown Y. M. C. A., has added more laurels to his list of swimming achievements.

This year his most thrilling race at Miquon, Pa., was against a classie field, including Peter Fich, Olympic ace and co-titleholder with Jimmy Weismuller of the world's record in the 100 yard free style.

A few weeks ago at Clementon, Jack broke the record for the Junior Middle Atlantic A. A. U. 50 yard free style championship, breaking district residence and district championship records.

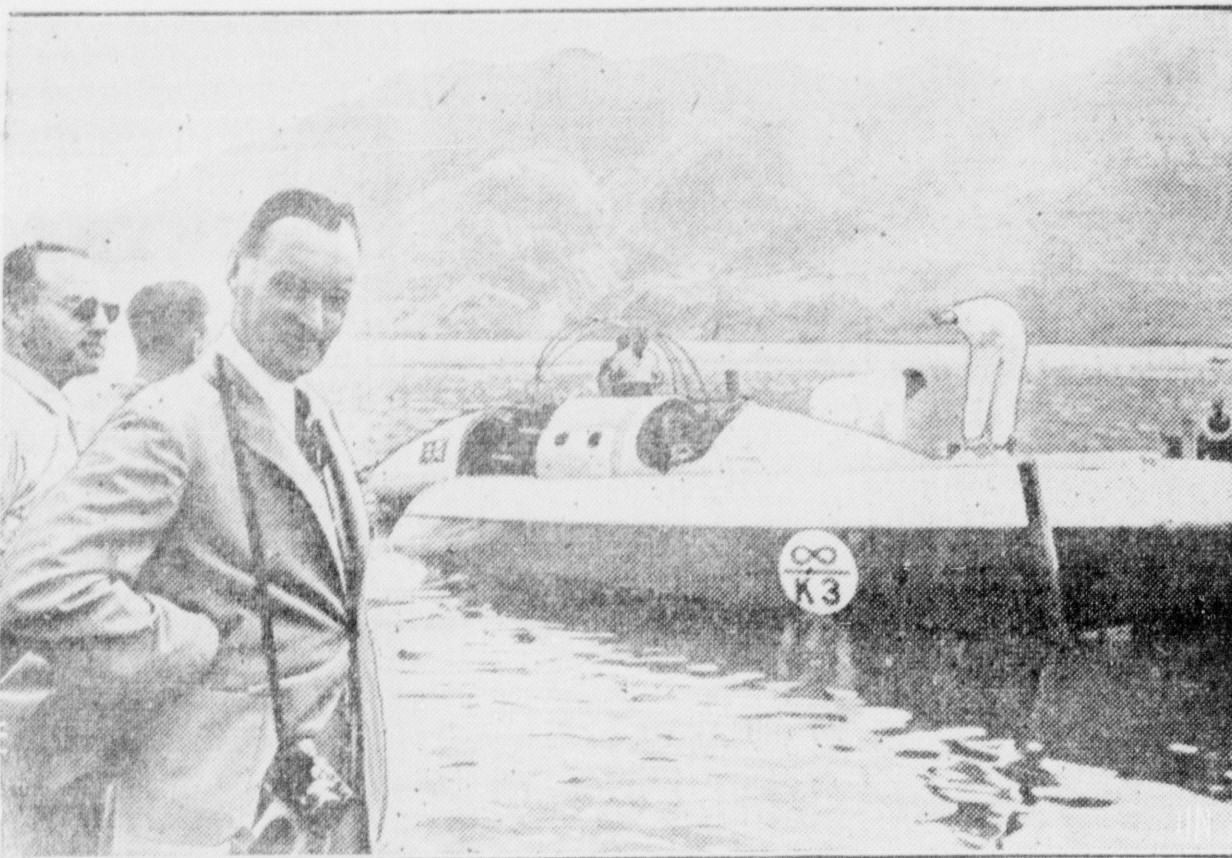

Last Friday night in Flanders Pool, Ocean City, he won the national championship in the 220 free style for men by nosing out Brinton C. Young, of Yale University, by a margin of three yards in two minutes, 28.5 seconds. Jack is a 16-year-old student at Northeast Catholic High School.

James J. McAdoo, who is coaching Jack, has predicted a bright future for him and thinks that he is headed for the 1940 Olympics.

RIVERTON NINE TO PLAY LANDRETH HERE SUNDAY

Tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock at Landreth ball park the Farmers will have as their opponents the strong Riverton baseball club from Riverton, N. J.

Many of the fans will remember the exciting games played last year and the year before between these two clubs. In 1935 Riverton won two of the three games—last year the clubs split even and this year the only game was won by Landreth. It was played early in the season.

The battery for the Farmers will be Black and Broderick. Ashby will be held in reserve and if he does not work Sunday will pitch Monday evening against R. D. Wood at Florence.

Sunday prices will be the same as the last game—any seat in either grandstand or bleachers, 25 cents, and ladies admitted free.

BRITAIN TO MOUNT 16-INCH GUNS ON SHIPS

Action Follows Similar Move By the U. S., and Fears That Japan May Also Act

OLD GUARD UNWILLING

By Kingsbury Smith

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Aug. 28.—(INS)—Great Britain today prepared reluctantly to follow America's lead in mounting 16-inch guns on new battleships.

Fear that Japan may mount this type of armament on her new battleships rather than rivalry with the United States Navy was held by the British Admiralty to be responsible for the preparations.

Nevertheless, the old guard of the British Navy was not willing to see superior guns mounted on American warships irrespective of Japan.

America's success in developing a better 16-inch gun than any other navy has been able to develop was one of the prime factors which led the British to urge restriction of these heavy guns to 14 inches.

British diplomacy strove long and tediously to induce the American Navy to agree to abandon the 16-inch weapon.

Britain finally succeeded in getting the United States to agree to do so as part of the London naval treaty of 1936. But the United States accepted with one condition—that the other naval powers agree to do likewise before April 1st, 1937. Japan refused to do so and Washington announced its intention of mounting 16-inch guns on the new battleships.

American naval officers were privately thankful to Japan for refusing to agree. The British Admiralty was far from thankful.

Before the United States announced its intention to mount the 16-inchers

The Polish Pounder

By BURNLEY

A real foreign threat in the coming national net tourney is the pulverizing Polish lass, Jadwiga Jedzejowska. (Believe it or not, that's a name, not a surname.)

"Jadka" as the gals call her for short, is a terrific wallower with the racket, being generally acknowledged as the hardest hitter in women's tennis.

The likeable Polish girl spanked our own Alice Marble three times in a row over in Europe this summer, and Alice is still burned up about it. The U. S. champ gained a measure of revenge by beating Jaddy in a recent Eastern tourney, but the Polish ace had not yet become acclimated.

The real test will come in the nationals, due to start early next month. Miss Marble, one of the hardest feminine wallowers herself, admits that the Jedzejowska jolter smacks 'em with more power than she does, but Alice thinks she can outsmart the pounding Pole.

We shall see! Fight it out, gals.

on the new American battleships, British naval officers spread a great deal of propaganda in the form of articles in the English press on the lack of wisdom in mounting the higher calibre weapon on 35,000-ton battleships.

The British held that to maintain the highest efficiency in speed and armour protection, it was necessary to confine 16-inch guns to ships of 45,000 tons. To mount the 16-inch weapons on 35,000-ton ships would necessitate sacrificing either speed or protection or both. Since the size of battleships was limited under existing treaties to 35,000 tons, the British held that the big guns should be limited to 14 inches.

Even when Japan, by refusing to agree to the 14-inch limitation, indicated it might mount 16-inch weapons on its new ships, the British still tried to induce the American navy to stick to 14-inch weapons.

Efforts were made to show that a ship with the smaller gun might prove even more formidable than Japanese ships with the bigger guns. Speed and protection were held to be more important than the difference in power between the 14-inch and 16-inch gun.

Commander Russell Grenfell, writing in the London Evening Standard, recalled that during the World War the British Navy had brought home very forcibly that larger guns by themselves were by no means the only criterion of victory.

"In the battle cruiser action in the early part of the Battle of Jutland," he said, "seven of our battle cruisers mounting 13.5 and 12 inch guns were opposed to six German battle cruisers mounting only 12 and 11 inch guns. The protection of our ships, however, was so much poorer than that of the Germans that two of our vessels blew up after receiving very few hits."

Despite this view, the British have been quick to announce that preparations are being made to mount 16-inch guns on their new battleships now that the United States has decided to stick to that weapon.

Under a new State game law, guns, which are in poor condition are to be junked in the interest of safety.

In commenting on the new provision, Director Gordon said, "It is one of the greatest safety-first regulations ever placed on the statute books of the Commonwealth." At the same time he cautioned all hunters to put their guns in shape and to relegate to the scrap heap, or to the collector's cabinet, any weapon too old or too unsafe for use this fall.

A number of hunters have already been killed through the use of defective firearms, and every effort will be made to discourage the use of such obsolete implements.

Gordon also called attention to the three-shot limit for firearms to hunt small game this fall and urged all hunters to insert plugs in the magazines of their repeating weapons immediately both for the sake of safety and to avoid unintentional violations.
